A new flag was added to the five flag poles in front of W. T. Woodson.

Between classes, in the cafeteria, and at social and athletic events, Cavaliers frequently saw a 5'9" Scandinavian with blue eyes and a friendly smile. Ole Holst, Woodson's first foreign exchange student, arrived from Denmark last August, after crossing the Atlantic with over two thousand other teenagers who were also destined for American homes and schools under the American Field Service Program. In addition to his basic senior courses of English, government, and math, Ole was enrolled in Woodson's electronics course. He was also a member of the Electronics Club, as well as an honorary member of the Senior National Honor Society.

He spent the year studying, making innumerable friends, speaking to student groups in the area, sharing his life in Copenhagen with American friends, and learning about "the American way of life." Before returning to his native Denmark, Ole spent three weeks touring the U.S.

Seniors sponsored the Christmas Formal

On December 21, 1963, the Senior Class sponsored the Wonderland by Night, the first formal dance open to all students. On the evening of the dance, couples arrived to find both cafeterias decorated according to the "Wonderland by Night" theme. The "main ballroom" was cafeteria A, which housed the queen's throne and the Partymakers, who provided entertainment. At the entrance, there was a lily pond crossed by a bridge. Cafeteria B was equipped with refreshments, tables, and a huge Christmas tree, and turned out to be the scene of a Christmas carol-hootenanny during the intermission.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of the court and the coronation of Miss JoAnne Coakley as queen. JoAnne and her escort led the assemblage in the royal dance, to no other tune than "Wonderland by Night."

Kathy Cloney and Randy Galbraith man the ticket station.

In early March, Woodson students were introduced to the most highly organized, most intensive drive it WTW's history, the Cavalier Light Brigade. Cavaliers combined their energies with local civic groups and businessmen in a concentrated effort to raise the $20,000 necessary to light the stadium.

The drive was officiated by Mr. Wilbert Tucker Woodson, former superintendent of schools, after whom the school was named. Working closely with the SPTA and the Student Government, Mr. Woodson lent enormous enthusiasm and energy to the campaign.

Each group represented in the Senate was given a quota, decided by the club's size. Each day presented new fund-raising projects, from a Varsity-Faculty game to a slave day to the old stand-by, the bake sale.

One of the biggest selling points of the drive was the necessity of lights for the graduation exercises of Woodson's first Senior Class. In addition, planners felt that if WTW were able to buy the superior facilities aimed for, it could be used in future seasons as a municipal stadium.

GUIDANCE

"Do I have to take P.E. another year?" "Would you explain these test scores to me, please?" "Isn't there a college somewhere I can get into?" These are typical questions with which Woodson students confronted the eleven members of the Guidance Department every day.

Mrs. Jones and Mr. Bowman, freshmen counselors, and Miss Hoover, Miss Lamb and Mr. Spangler, sophomore counselors, concentrated on helping each student plan his educational program and adjust to the high school curriculum, emphasizing requirements for graduation and general vocational plans. Junior counselors, Mr. Jasper and Mr. Hackney assumed preliminary responsibility for specific college and career planning.

The department's extensive program of testing included the administration of such ability and achievement tests as SCAT, STEP, National Merit Scholarship, PSAT, and College Boards. Teacher-parent conferences were scheduled through the counselors and congratulations were sent to Honor Roll students.

Senior counselors, Miss Winn and Mr. Lehman spent endless hours helping their advisers gain the greatest possible benefit from their final year in high school. They obtained information about job opportunities after high school, advised the seniors about college, made scholarship information available and sent transcripts.

Another milestone was the addition of vocational guidance counselor Mr. Springston, who, aside from other duties, initiated a job placement service at Woodson.

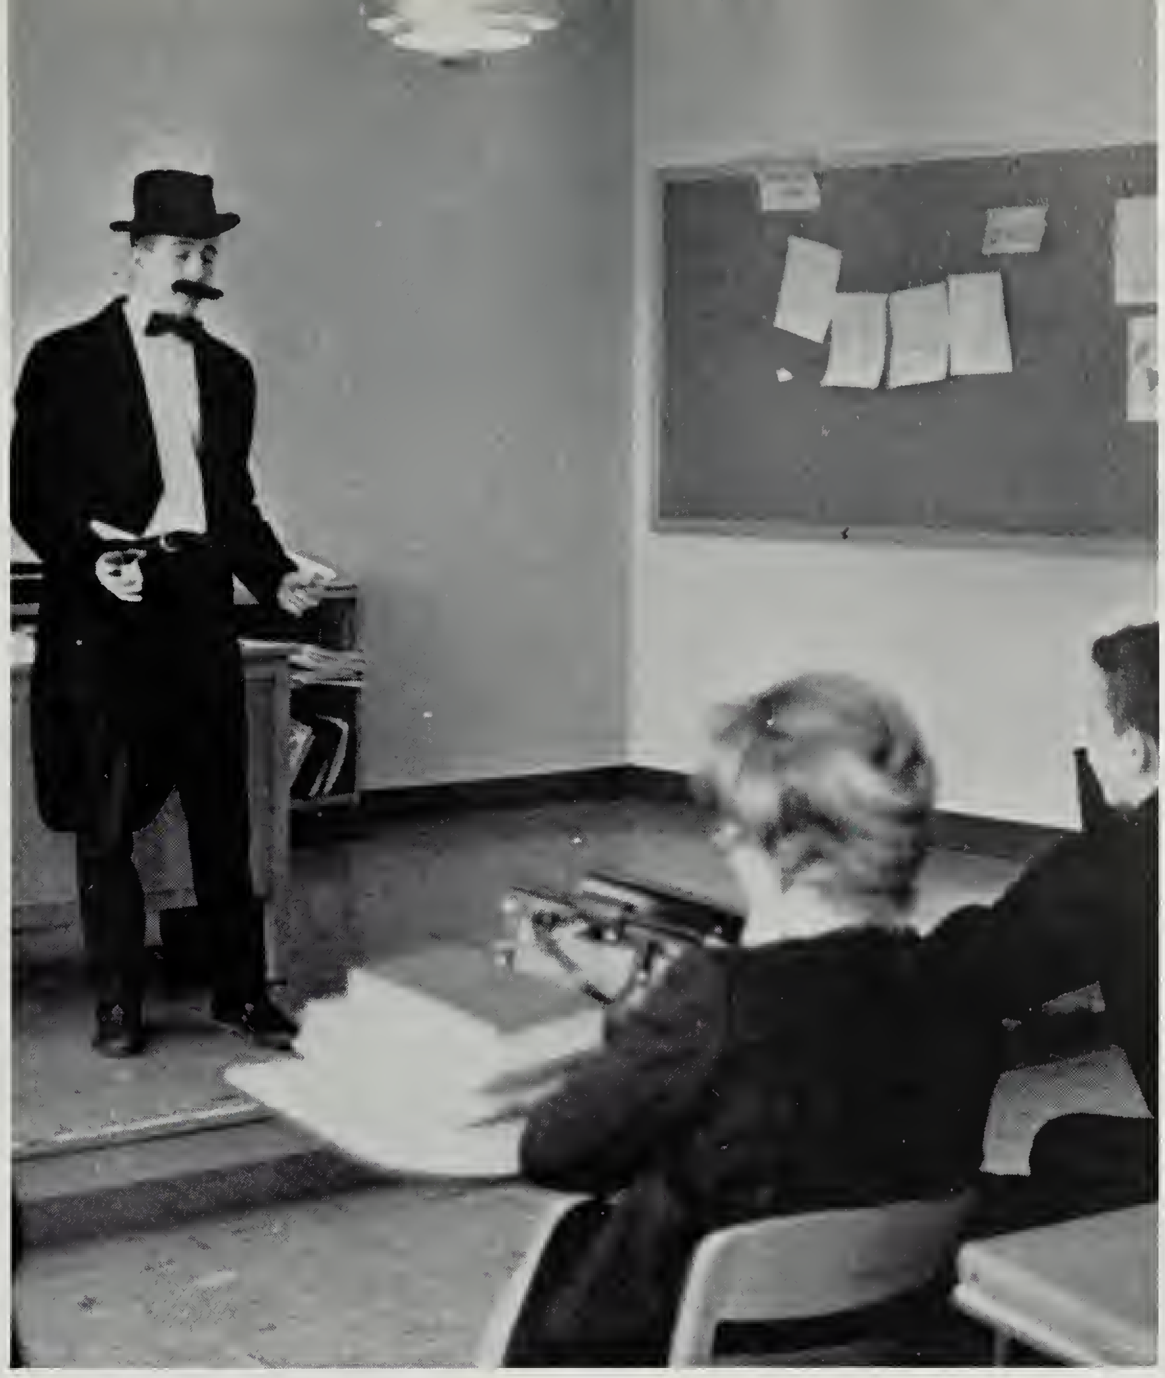
ENGLISH

If our parents had compared Woodson's English classes this year with the ones of their youth, they would have found many surprising changes. In Senior English, no doubt they would have recognized "Whan that Aprillë with his shourës sootë . . ." from the "Prologue" of Chaucer's Canterbury Tales; and in Sophomore English, Shakespeare's "It's Greek to me" would have been nothing new. However, the Junior English unit on American drama, climaxed by a trip to see a professional performance of The Crucible, would have been novel. They would have been amazed at the experimental course taken by a select group of seniors which included a summer reading program plus more intensive reading and writing during the school year. Perhaps, thinking it impossible to change the presentation of grammar, our parents would have marveled at the structural linguistics approach in two freshman classes. Had they chanced to wander into a drama, public speaking, journalism, or creative writing class, perhaps they would have envied the many opportunities Cavaliers have today to extend their experiences in self expression.



Bedecked in topper and tails, Jim Parker tells his public speaking class "How I Made a Million Dollars Without Trying."

SOCIAL STUDIES

Even the United States Congress felt the impact of Woodson's social studies program as over five hundred seniors formed the largest student group ever to visit the seat of American government. Another highlight of the U.S. Government survey involved mock elections held in November to familiarize students with voting procedures. After concepts and practices of American democracy had been thoroughly explored, the final nine weeks of the year were spent in a comparative analysis of other major government systems such as fascism and communism.

MATHEMATICS

What's this? A math class in the planetarium? It was not that math classrooms at Woodson were overcrowded; it was merely that functions classes were using their accumulated knowledge of algebra and geometry to plot constellations. Such activity was typical of the contemporary approach employed in Woodson's classrooms.

While many freshmen and sophomores at Woodson enrolled in Math 9 and Technical Math and pursued a more immediately practical application of their knowledge, others began the long trek toward higher mathematics in algebra

PHYSICAL

WTW's Physical Education Department, alias "birthplace of sore muscles," had in 1963-64 an instructional staff of nine men and eight women, to supervise the activities of two-thirds of Woodson's student body enrolled in gym classes. All freshmen were involved in driver education and in general health and first aid instruction, in addition to the conventional program of seasonal sports and calisthenics. Sophomores, too, alternated between classroom and physical activity.

EDUCATION

Three-week units in the classroom focused intensively upon physical and mental health, after which sophomores returned to the gym for three-week bouts with various team sports.

Juniors and seniors, who concentrated more on individual or small-group sports and who did not receive classroom instruction, spent one class period each day striving for "physical and mental fitness" through participation in such activities as tennis, field hockey, modern dance, track, gymnastics, and archery.

BUSINESS

"This is the Music Department?" No, it's our Business Department—that light-headed, tingling music emanates from typing classes using rhythm records. The march or waltz begins, students sit up, catch the cadence, and start typing in rhythm with the music. Tap for tap, they try to keep up with the music—it's a game! But it's concentration, for a continuous and unhesitating pace must be maintained.

Courses other than typing designed to prepare Woodson students for their places in the business world include general business, shorthand, bookkeeping, accounting, and clerical office practice.

HOME ECONOMICS

Oriented around the "Homemaker of Tomorrow" theme, home economics students have worked on many projects beneficial to the school this year. Their first project was collecting donations for the Junior Village, a home for parentless children. Second, and a most worthwhile endeavor, was the making of candy for the many needy families in the area at Christmas. In January, the students in second year homemaking participated in a style show in which the girls modeled the clothes they had made.

MUSIC

The Music Department's aim was to encourage and develop a love for good music, whether vocal or instrumental, and to teach that music is music, regardless of the form.

Through different types of choirs and bands, the singer or instrumental musician was offered training compatible with his varying musical needs. The unskilled person could find a challenge, yet was not pushed beyond his ability.

The more experienced singers had a chance for more demanding, small ensemble work where they used more difficult choral literature and had an opportunity to develop individual talents.

Members of the band worked for their first class musician standing and the band letter.

Bob Garner takes his turn to lead the Symphonic Choir.

Realizing the challenge of creativity, seeing one's own ideas take shape, becoming cognizant of the many forms of art, accepting the discipline for self-expression—all these were experienced by that one-eighth of Woodson's student body enrolled in art classes.

Unlike the sometimes intangible results in other departments, those of the art department afforded to even a casual passerby visible evidence of its students' work and progress. Among the student creations displayed in hall and classroom showcases were intricate wood sculptures, ceramics, and colorful pastel works on velour suede. In December, even the outside passerby was able to enjoy the stained glass Christmas scenes which graced Art Department windows. In January, the advanced class had an experimental project consisting of abstract pictures painted with enamel. Wall hangings made from yarn stitching and sculptures of twisted wires were among the more unusual works.

Another exhibit of the ambition, talent, and achievement that lie within this department was the Spring Art Show, which displayed every kind of art from papier maché to water colors and oil paints, and from portraiture to fashion design and story illustration.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

With its eight courses aimed at the study of industries, materials, processes, products, occupations, and problems of industry and how they affect society, this department has a course of study designed to provide its students with the fundamentals of industrial technology.

The introductory course, Industrial Arts I, gives the student a general insight into industry. It is a preparatory course for either Industrial Arts II or one of the specific fields offered such as wood-working, metalworking, or electronics. These courses give the student an opportunity to study metals, woods, plastics, ceramics, electricity, graphic art, industrial drawing, power mechanics, and design. Industrial Arts II is a more advanced study, designed for students who perhaps have career interests in industry. The highly specialized Research and Experiment course enables the more scientific-minded student to apply his ideas. These students are taught to test their ideas through research, experimentation, application of scientific facts, and by exchange of their problems and solutions in seminars.

Fully equipped laboratories and well-trained faculty members enable the industrial arts students to begin early application of their newly acquired skills. In early February, architectural students built scale models of their "dream-house." With the use of such unique pieces of machinery as the Universal Tester, metalurgical microscope, duplicating machines, and radio training kits, the students became quite proficient in their search for new methods and applications and in carrying out their curiosity about the industrial environment.

If an observer could have been two places at once in Woodson High during the past year, he might have seen one group of students "taking the pulse" of an automobile engine with a unique, four-thousand-dollar piece of equipment called the Auto Rol, which measures engine knock, gas mileage, rpm's and other factors under controlled load conditions. He might at the same time have seen another group of students using an ordinary piece of human equipment, the hand, to take the pulse of human heart, another kind of engine that varies under "load."

Students who were enrolled in this program attended classes within the regular academic schedule for the first four periods each day. After classes and lunch, they went directly to their jobs where they spent at least fifteen hours a week, under supervision by both their employer and their I.C.T. coordinator, Mr. Wilson. Positions such as pathology laboratory technician, printer's assistant, hairdresser, and gun smith were among the many apprenticeship opportunities accepted by Woodson students.

"I.C.T. is an effective way to bridge the gap between the world of high school and that of work for students who will seek full-time employment immediately after high school."

Mr. Wilson went on to emphasize the importance of careful curriculum planning for ninth and tenth graders who anticipate taking advantage of this on-the-job training while earning a high school diploma

In addition to their regular classes scheduled during the morning, D.E. students spent one period each day receiving classroom instruction on such topics as business ethics, merchandising, and advertising. During afternoon hours and on Saturdays, they received training from businessmen who provided part-time employment for salary and school credit toward graduation. After graduation, D.E. students made the transition from a part-time to a full-time job in one of the many exciting careers which the field of distributive education offers.

SENIORS

The members of the Class of 1964 had spent many years preparing and waiting for their senior year, but it was difficult for them to realize that they had finally reached the coveted goal.

The dream soon became reality as seniors shouldered the responsibilities of their class. As the largest graduating class in Fairfax County's history, and the first graduating class of the W. T. Woodson High School, they aimed for scholastic excellence. Upon receiving National Merit Scholarship Test and College Board results, they discovered that much had been, and would be, expected of them. Catalogues, application blanks, interviews, and anxious hours of waiting followed. The results were gratifying, with a large percentage of the class of five hundred and fifty seniors receiving the welcome college acceptances.

Class unity and organization were revealed early in the senior year. While suggestions were requested and imaginations worked eagerly, plans for an exciting final year were placed on the activities calendar.

A pre-school welcoming tea for teachers and a Sadie Hawkins Dance were the first projects sponsored by the Activities Committee. College Night and Junior Slave Day followed, balancing work with play. The Christmas season was appropriately celebrated by having a Senior Assembly with a Santa Claus, and the semi-formal dance, "Wonderland By Night," with its winter motif and first senior queen and court in WTW's history. A performance by the National Ballet of Washington, D.C., and the senior trip to Congress were included among the cultural highlights of the year.

Plans for the grand finishing touch of the final prom were outlined.

The Ways and Means Committee worked closely with the other committees in financing class activities. Money-making projects consisted of a Saturday car wash, Junior-Senior Basketball game, the play production, "The Silver Whistle," and the Senior Beanie Sale.

Privileges were gained by the deserving upperclassmen. Senior lunch lines, class cards, tables, dress-up day, name tags, and seats in the auditorium constituted the privileges. Plans for a senior court were also considered.

The Gift Committee received suggestions from the Senior Council concerning the presentation of a gift to the school in behalf of the Class of 1964.

WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE. John Cabot, Ronnie Friedman, Nancy Raine, Charli Harlan, Chairman.

"To strive, to seek, to

Through the Senior Council, important traditions were established such as the class flower—carnation, the class colors—blue and silver, and the class motto—"To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

In the field of leadership, seniors held important positions in the student government, clubs, publications, and athletics. In many ways they served, establishing significant precedents. Although they had only two short years at Woodson High School, it took them little time to gain respect and pride within the class, county, and state. Many memories of high school life will fade as seniors continue in the course of life; however, the friendships made, education received, and individual opportunities of laying high standards in the foundation of their alma mater will be forever engraved in their hearts and minds.

find, and not to yield”

With sudden realization, they knew their life as high school students was coming to an end, and the time was upon them when they had to decide what their future would be. With mixed emotions, they watched and cheered at their last games, danced and laughed at their final prom, crammed and worried through their last high school exams, hesitantly donned the caps and gowns, marched down the field, and readied themselves to begin life as adults.

To counselors, Miss Winn and Mr. Lehman, to class sponsors, Miss Johnson and Mr. Puffenberger, to our teachers, and to Mr. Chesley, all class members are indebted. Products of guidance, teaching, and understanding, the Class of '64 goes forth.

JUNIORS

From the opening of school in September, juniors felt their new responsibilities and worked with the seniors as school leaders. October brought Slave Day and with it the opportunity to aid the class while serving senior "masters." Amid groans of dismay, the testing season arrived. SCAT and STEP were rapidly followed in November by the PSAT. Spirits rose in December with the class trip to see The Crucible and participation in the school's Christmas project.

After the holidays, the talk of the class was the prospect of ordering rings, and rivalry ran high over the Junior-Senior basketball game. On the more romantic side, in February the class sponsored the Sweetheart Dance. Spring arrived and juniors channeled their energies into Student Government elections and the Junior Jollies. In May the rings came and the class celebrated at the long-awaited Ring Dance. As the year drew to a close, juniors turned their thoughts to the goals they would achieve as Woodson's Senior Class.

SOPHOMORES

After the first rollicking weeks of school, the sophomores settled into the routine of school life and began to organize their class. In order to earn money for stadium lights and for their treasury, the sophomores sponsored the sale of Cavalier Booster stickers. In November, representatives to the Sophomore Council were elected through English classes and, in January, an organizational meeting was held. Plans were rapidly made and the class sponsored a successful bake sale. Enthusiasm aroused, the sophomores then played host to the student body at an open dance. As it looked back, the class realized that it had set a pace of spirit and work that would be a standard for future sophomores at Woodson.

ACTIVITIES COMMITTEE. Steve Barnett, Sidra Singer, Ron Rector, Chris Hill, Larry Eldracher, Helen Peterson, Roby Bennett, Jim Egar.

Freshmen entered the world of WTW

Barry Myers discusses ratification of the constitution with Mr. Munson's seventh period English class.

FRESHMEN

September, 1963, and Woodson was suddenly greeted with a throng of new faces. Gathered from the various intermediate schools in the area, the Freshmen spent many lonely weeks in classrooms containing only one or two familiar faces and maze of hallways that never seemed to lead to the right classes.

The Freshmen rapidly learned the art of getting ahead, and it became a common sight to see a dart of color weaving in and out of the between-class traffic jams and competing with the upperclassmen for that precious first place in the lunch line.

The weeks rolled into the months of fall and the Freshmen united into a strong class held together by common goals. On the football field, the Freshmen fought to a 3-2-1 season amid the frenzied cheers of the parents who braved the fumbles to watch the future Varsity in action.

December arrived, and as Christmas approached, the Class of '67 realized that they were in school to learn more than pronouns and square roots. Part of this education took place in the form of participation in the Christmas Project.

After the New Year, the class held its long-awaited elections and was given the chance to put into use the principles of democracy learned in the classroom. With a constitution and council, they were officially recognized and set out to prove themselves worthy of the title of the best freshman class in Woodson's history. Under the sponsorship of Mr. Irwin, the class made numerous plans for its spring outing.

As the class became organized and mobilized this year, it showed the signs of potential greatness and power for it has displayed the initiative necessary to continue in the tradition of Woodson.

STUDENT GOV'T.

Under the combined leadership of President Dave Barnett and Advisor Mrs. French, Student Government launched in September '64 its first full-year program. At Woodson this organization consisted of three branches: Executive, Senate, and House of Representatives. The Senate, composed of delegates from all organizations, met weekly to co-ordinate all club-sponsored activities. The Homeroom Representatives met each Monday morning to voice questions, discuss problems of concern with their "constituents," and then carry reports back to the homerooms. There were monthly General Sessions, open to all Cavaliers.

Throughout the year the Student Government led the students through such projects as the "adoption" of needy families at Christmas, the Cavalier Light Brigade, and the Leadership Training Program.

Jaime Atherton oversees magazine drive operations.

Learning the "grass roots" fundamentals of Student Government, President-elect Dennis Carr worked with Dave Barnett in processing Light Brigade contributions.

In times of need like the campaign for lights, Student Government pooled its resources (Mrs. French, Jaime Atherton, and Sue Hall) to make the drive a success.

HONOR SOCIETIES

Character, Scholarship, Leadership, and Service filed solemnly toward the stage of the darkened auditorium as classmates looked on with respect. The thirty-five inductees to the Senior National Honor Society repeated the national pledge in an impressive ceremony in December, and thereby took on the responsibility of maintaining the standards by which they were selected.

In an early September meeting, initial plans for major projects were instigated. As the year progressed, the chapter instituted a tutoring service and an honor roll plaque. One of the chapter's most significant contributions to the school was its sponsorship and encouragement of activities related to the Fine Arts. In February, they carried out arrangements for Woodson and Fairfax seniors to view a National Ballet Company performance in the auditorium. Then in late March the chapter, along with the school's Fine Arts Council, brought Catholic University Players' performance of Oedipus Rex to Woodson.

THE CAVALIER

Long before school opened in September, The Cavalier staff was at work; already they were aware that it was an immense student body whose history they were to record. However, only when they began to take pictures and attempted to cover all activities did they realize just how large.

Gradually, pictures and copy accumulated, and the book began to take shape. Deadlines approached; aspirin bottles, late hours, and frayed nerves characterized Room 132; and more than once the book's theme of "happiness" became ironic. Happiness did become a reality, though, when one day late in March the final airmail package was off to the publisher. Then began the weeks of waiting—weeks that were spent in training next year's staff and convincing them that no activity is more demanding, or rewarding, than publishing The Cavalier.

CAVALCADE

High school newspapers reflect, more than any other publication, changing trends of thought. By bringing current conflicts and activities to light, the Cavalcade served as a major means of communication between student groups and the individual Cavalier. Features, such as play reviews, a Senior page in the January issue, and comprehensive sports coverage, served to unify W.T.W.'s massive student body by making everyone feel a part of the school.

The Cavalcade christened a new staff room at the beginning of the year, and kept life interesting by waging a running battle to keep it. Two minor crises occurred during the year, with a change in midstream of printers and of photographers, but the staff went on counting characters and identifying pictures, oblivious to difficulties, even when editor Paul Ramsey showed up with a black eye. His diligent and faithful staff members blithely pursued their responsibilities to cover all news except, perhaps, the activities of the editor.

Seriously, Editor Paul and Advisor Miss Spencer led their staff of photographers, reporters, and page editors through eight major issues of the Cavalcade, plus a special school opening issue and a Cavalier Light Brigade feature edition.

Sponsor Mrs. Senio reviews a new contribution.

THE PAGE

A literary magazine is sometimes thought of by students as a dull, heavy publication which has to be bought with the yearbook and newspaper. At Woodson this image has been wiped out; The Page staff has proved that a literary magazine can be the most interesting school publication, because it represents the greatest cross section of the school's writers and artists.

Working from a tiny office which doubled as a French classroom, The Page staff and sponsor Mrs. Senio produced three issues: regular fall and winter productions and a special spring edition. By recruiting the aid of English teachers in submitting student masterpieces, the staff spent much time gathering poetry, prose and art for its issues. Since everything submitted could not be published, a large portion of the staff's time was spent in reviewing and judging contributions.

By sponsoring a writing contest in the winter, The Page staff not only gained contributions, but inspired many future journalists to begin their efforts at W.T.W.

The page solicited art, poetry, and prose

QUILL AND SCROLL

The W. T. Woodson Chapter of Quill and Scroll was organized in June, 1963. An impressive school-wide ceremony was held in which sixteen students were inducted. All has been selected on the basis of outstanding performance on the newspaper, yearbook or literary magazine staffs. While the organization is primarily honorary, it has functioned as a forum in which journalists may discuss common problems and share ideas.

CAVALIER CORPS

Under the auspices of Mr. Volrath and the Student Government, a pilot group, termed the Cavalier Corps, came into being during November. Unique in the Northern Virginia area, the Cavalier Corps is a service organization devised to provide positive leadership in activities throughout the school. The Cavalier Corps was organized as a Cabinet committee under President Tom Joyce. The qualifications of its members include the possession of strong leadership and a willingness to do a maximum of work with a minimum of credit.

Sporting the golden W.T.W. emblem on blue cardigan sweaters, the members of the Cavalier Corps exhibited their authority in various school service projects by controlling lunch lines, ushering in the auditorium, directing traffic at evening activities, and aiding the faculty daily by monitoring the halls during lunch periods.

KEY CLUB AND KEYETTES

Led by Rich Cantwell, president, and Mr. Dowling, faculty sponsor, the Woodson Key Club spent the year striving to make worthwhile contributions to the school and community. One of their most appreciated services was the late-fall preparation and sale of a student directory, under the direction of Richard Payne. In February they undertook the sponsorship of sports, travel, and educational films shown in the auditorium during lunch periods. Other activities included assistance in a local cerebral palsy office, sponsorship of a scholarship for a senior Cavalier, and donation of a brick announcement sign at the entrance to the school. Perhaps the high point of the year was their mid-March convention in Richmond, in which the club ran a candidate for the office of state.

In September the Keyette Club, with a membership of thirty-six sophomore, junior, and senior girls, began its first full year of service to Woodson. President Dale Tolson led the organization of a paperback book store, after-school assistance in the library, and a spring "Daffodil Day." In addition, the Keyettes collected eye-glasses from students for children in India and money for the March of Dimes, and joined the Key Club in the enjoyment of a party. In April Keyettes attended the state convention in Washington, D. C., covering business sessions and informal seminars.

DRAMA CLUB

On the first day of school, the Drama Club officers and sponsor, Mr. Gary, began plans for Rebel Without a Cause, a realistic presentation of problems involving modern youth. Committees were formed, the play was cast, practices began, and finally the curtain rose. After "Rebel," the Drama Club began plans for the second annual "Odds 'N Ends," a series of scenes from "The Lottery," "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "A Pair of Lunatics," "South Pacific," and "Wonderful Town."

THESPIAN SOCIETY

The National Thespian Society is an honorary organization devoted to the advancement of dramatic art in the nation's secondary schools. Plans for the organization of Woodson's Troupe 194 were begun early in the summer, as President Sharon Hutson worked to compile individual points for dramatic participation. On January 7, 1964, having received its national charter, the new Troupe held its first induction, in which fourteen students received the honor of membership.

INTER-NATIONAL CLUB

The purpose of the International Club is to promote among students an understanding of international relations, and to inform them of customs and affairs in foreign countries. One of the Woodson Club's major activities was the promotion and sponsorship of the American Field Service International Scholarship program. In the spring of 1963, the club began a drive to raise money for a foreign exchange student and, in August, Ole Holst arrived to become a brother to Cavaliers Steve and Dave Barnett, and an active Woodson student. Ole and a number of other foreign exchange students from local high schools were guest speakers at International Club programs throughout the year.

Other major activities of the club included observance of the U.N. Week in October, a field trip to the U.N. in November, and an A.F.S. drive in the spring for a 1964-1965 foreign exchange student.

DEBATE TEAM

Woodson's Debate Team, originally organized as a solely intramural group, this year entered the Southern Division of the Virginia League. After two months of intensive research and practice, the squad entered interscholastic competition.

In the opening weeks of the season, even before faculty sponsors were appointed, veteran debaters Kohlhagen, Drye, Healy, and Zaugg instructed the new members and got research under way.

The debaters developed techniques of logical argument, organization, and presentation of facts to prove a particular point. Sponsors Mrs. Carmichael and Miss Bennett, and Captain Steve Kohlhagen, scheduled debates on this year's topic: the extension of social security benefits to include complete medical care. Organized into affirmative and negative teams, the members occasionally switched sides to get practice in defending the opposite point of view, learning that the presentation is the most important factor in debate.

Spirited students provided posters and cheers

PEP CLUB

From the first athletic contest in September to the last event of the year, the Cavalier Pep Club devoted its energies to promoting school spirit and good sportsmanship.

To insure efficient organization, the membership was divided into five committees: goal posts, decorations, maps, publicity, and funds. In this way each member concentrated all his efforts in his special area, while contributing to the general usefulness of the club.

In the fall, Pep Club members publicized football games, decorated goal posts and formed cheering sections. Paper footballs on team members' lockers and bus transportation to faraway games were two of the other services provided to football fans.

Throughout the rest of the year, the Pep Club performed such services as decorating for athletic banquets and dances and promoting enthusiasm for the often unpublicized sports such as track, baseball, and girls' sports.

ART GUILD

To the members of the Art Guild, the brush and pallette were symbols of the expression of life. Open to any interested student, the Guild functioned to foster interest in all art forms, either through participation or through observation.

At their weekly meetings, art enthusiasts listened to talks by artists, discussed problems, and planned displays for the school's bulletin boards and showcases. In art workshops, Guild members experimented with techniques and materials in order to further their knowledge.

FRENCH CLUB

Members of Woodson's French Club had a rare opportunity in their sponsor, Miss Hélène Valière, a real live Parisienne.

President Nancy Robb led the group, organizing activities and planning programs. Miss Valière exposed her students to such varied topics as skin diving, guitar playing, and psychology.

The students took an active part in club activities, delivering talks on subjects from French schools to Général DeGaulle..

In addition, there were full-length films such as "Orphans of the Storm," and a documentary on French Canada. In early spring, the club lunched at Le Bistrot in Washington, and sold French pastries for the Light Brigade.

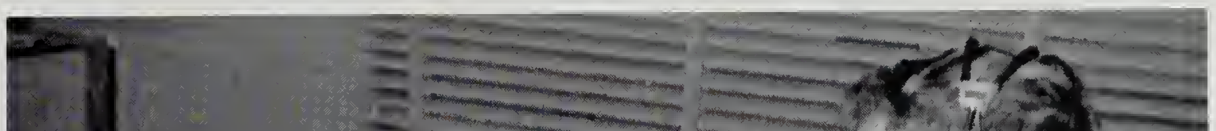
GERMAN CLUB

The membership of the German Club was open to all interested students who had taken or were taking German. Sponsored by Mrs. Porinsh and Mr. Bolt, the club's purpose was to create an interest in Germany's culture, people, and traditions.

The programs consisted of films, such as "Travelling in Germany," and slides on German landscapes. At one meeting, the members even played parlour games—in German, of course.

At the beginning of the year, President Eric Olson and the other members planned a traditional German Oktober Fest. Christmas was celebrated at a dance for all German students, with entertainment provided by a folk-singing group called the Sundowners. In the spring, the club planned fund-raising activities to finance a contribution to the Light Brigade.



German Club co-sponsor Mr. Bolt puts emphasis into his speech.

LATIN CLUB

The Latin Club, sponsored by Mrs. Mathers, and affiliated with the National Junior Classical League, is open to any current or former Latin student. The general purpose is promotion of understanding of the civilization of ancient Rome.

On March 26, the Club held its Latin Banquet. With first-year students as slaves, the Caesarians dined on Cornish game hens and wild rice. Entertainment consisted of a one-act comedy and mock gladiator fights.

Late in April, the Club members participated in the National Latin Examination. Set up by grade level, the examination led to a scholarship for top participants.

Tortillas and hot tamales were not unknown to Spanish Club members during the past year. Taking excursions to Spanish restaurants, such as La Fonda, they had the opportunity to order in Spanish, eat Spanish dishes, and take Spanish aspirin.

Aided by Señor Armando Farfan, faculty sponsor and exchange teacher from Peru, the club members were able to acquire an insight into everyday life in South American countries. Included in the club agendas were slides, lectures, skits, and occasionally, the added attraction of Señor Farfan's strumming along on his guitar.

Y.F.C.

The Youth for Christ Club, presided over by senior Judy Penn, exists for the purpose of maintaining Christian standards and rendering service to the school and community.

An interdenominational group, the club met weekly, watching films, conducting panel discussions, hearing guest speakers and presenting skits dealing with school, national, and international problems.

Another primary feature of the club program was study of the Bible. Portions of both the Old and New Testaments were read and interpreted, as members helped each other gain a fuller understanding of the Scriptures.

In its service capacity, the Youth for Christ Club designed and decorated the front lobby bulletin board at Easter.

TRI-HI-Y

The purpose of the Tri-Hi-Y, as defined in the national constitution, is "to create, maintain, extend." Meetings were held the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, with a planned program following the short business meeting. Often, students went before the group to discuss current problems.

The Woodson Tri-Hi-Y, as a division of the Fairfax County branch, sponsored by the YWCA, and a member of the national organization, sends a representative to each district meeting to record important information.

The Tri-Hi-Y aids in the induction of newly formed chapters in other schools, and serves at dinners given by Woodson organizations. Public life is stressed on the bulletin board which they maintain and prepare regularly.

F.S.A.

The Future Scientists of America is a nationwide organization for high school science enthusiasts. In its second year of operation, Woodson had three F.S.A. groups: the Science Research and Electronics Clubs, organized in 1962, and the newly formed Terrestrial Science Club.

Members of the Science Research group, sponsored by Mrs. Opp and Mr. Chandler, spent their time in extracurricular pursuit of facts, and were usually recognizable by their acid-stained fingers.

The Electronics Club, through the efforts of Mr. Adams, worked toward increased technical knowledge in the areas of communication.

Sponsor Mrs. Banks led her Terrestrial Science group through viewings of meteor showers, the Micro-Meteorological Laboratory at Sterling, Virginia, and experimental work in the field.

Future vocations were explored and studied

M.C.C., F.T.A., F.H.A.

The Medical Careers Club drew its membership from students who were considering a vocation in some realm of the medical world. Participating in a variety of interesting projects such as making periodic visits to area hospitals, club members were able to begin accumulating knowledge about various fields of medicine. Club programs consisted of films, discussions, and lectures. In the spring, club members visited the Medical College of Virginia.

The Woodson chapter of Future Teachers of America sought to encourage and stimulate students interested in the teaching profession and to provide its members with a taste of actual teaching experience. Thus, the student-teaching program became the mainstay of the 63-64 activities. This program enabled the eighteen participating members to spend one day each month observing and instructing in nearby elementary classrooms. The chapter's social program for the year opened with the annual faculty tea. In the spring a field trip to NEA provided club members with an overview of the professional organization of teachers. Woodson's exchange teacher from France, Miss Valière, provided one of the most interesting programs of the year when she discussed differences between French and American schools.

Members of the Future Homemakers of America gained experience in the arts of hostessing and serving, in addition to supplementing their classroom learning about cooking, sewing, and managing a household. They started the season in September with a tea for the faculty. At Christmas they made and sold corsages and in January they held a style show at which they modeled self-made fashions. Activities such as a Mother-Daughter Night and volunteer work at the Sleepy Hollow Nursing Home rounded the year's activities.

BANDS

The west end of Woodson was a picture of frenzied activity, as uniform managers tried to fit one hundred and three band members into one hundred uniforms, harried librarians searched for a missing piccalo part, and Mr. Buskirk, director, tried to keep from developing an ulcer. Tattered streamers, scattered sheets of music, and sore feet were the mementos of football half-time shows as the Cavalier Band moved resolutely into the concert season. Passers-by in the music wing were entertained by strains of "Frosty the Snowman," "Jubilation T. Cornpone," and "The Finale from the New World Symphony," as the band raced to prepare for the Second Annual Christmas Concert. the Extravaganza, participation in the District IV Band Festival, and the Second Annual Spring Concert. Meanwhile, individual band members participated in the District IV Solo and Ensemble Festival and attended All-State Band. At the close of a busy, rewarding year, tired but satisfied Cavalier bandsmen realized that their contribution of hours and talent had lent immeasurable support to the unification of the student body.

BANDS

A love of music and a sincere willingness to learn are the most important aspects of musicianship, as the members of the Concert and Reserve Bands learned. Although members of these two organizations did not perform at all of the concerts and football games, they spent their time acquiring invaluable training in theory and technique . . . necessary abilities in a performing organization. While waiting their turn, members of the Concert Band performed at the Christmas Assembly, and members of both groups lent their much-needed assistance in the capacity of runners, watch-dogs, and all-around right-hand men for the Symphonic Band. Members of the Concert and Reserve Bands looked forward to using their newly-acquired training in the performing bands of future years.

Spirit at football games and pep rallies

PEP BAND

Many a frosty Friday was opened with an outdoor pep rally, as the numb-fingered members of the Cavalier Pep Band played to spark enthusiasm for the football games. As the year progressed, the Pep Band played at home hockey games, for assemblies, and during half-time shows at some of the football games. Student directors Cliff Brown and Bob Satterford headed the group throughout the year, giving necessary marching instructions and compiling musical data.

CAVALETTES

The W. T. Woodson Cavalettes reached new heights of precision as they twirled their way to victory. With high steps and cheery smiles the girls accompanied the Marching Band wherever it went, giving students eye as well as ear appeal.

Intensive practice and drill showed their great precision and originality at halftime performances. Whether gay, rain-soaked, or shivering cold, the girls could always be found boosting spirits at W.T.W. games.

The Pep band played at many school-wide pep rallies.

W.T.W. Cavalettes sought precision at every football game.

The halls near the ultra-modern Choral Department echoed with strains of sacred music, seasonal songs, folk music, and the best from Tin Pan Alley and Broadway as members of Woodson's six choirs worked to maintain the standard of excellence which has made them one of the top choral departments of the area. Under the demanding direction of Mrs. Jane Numbers, the choirs learned and applied many musical techniques—tone quality, modulation, sight reading, correct breathing, and posture. The results of their labors took the form of performance in several concerts, "Extravaganza '64," and participation in the District IV Festival, as well as providing appropriate choral music for all activities at which they were asked to sing. The Symphonic Choir, Senior Mixed Choir, Treble Choir, Select Girls Choir, Freshman Girls Choir, and Freshman Mixed Choir all worked together to earn the top honors in area competition.

Selected early in the spring of 1963, the Varsity cheerleaders practiced piercing screams, new chants, and victory jumps throughout the summer. Prior to the opening of school in August, Miss Lichtefeld and her squad of eleven sponsored a preseason meeting of Northern Virginia Varsity Cheerleaders, which was attended by members from eighteen area schools. The program, emceed by Mr. Lehman, provided a seminar for cheer exchanges and discussion of problems.

Throughout the football season, to bolster the Cavalier spirit, Friday lunch period pep rallies were held in the auditorium, and, periodically, throughout the year school-wide rallies were held in the gym and out on the athletic field.

Personifying the Cavalier spirit, the cheerleaders were always present—escorting the parents of the Varsity squad at Homecoming, serving at the Light Brigade press reception, and acting as Woodson's hostesses.

Keeping the morale of the Junior Varsity teams at its peak with cheers and unending enthusiasm, the Junior Varsity cheerleaders helped to unify underclass spirit. "The main objective of our J.V. squad has been to promote pride in our school," said Patti Lynch, captain of the cheerleading brigade. Patti's wish came true. The atmosphere at every basketball and football game grew more tense as cheers rang out from the stands. With every setback encountered by the Junior Varsity teams, there came a response from the cheerleaders "We're behind you, boys, we're backing you up!" When the chips were down, the girls fought doubly hard to keep the spirit at an ever-rising peak. Junior Varsity teams are thankful for the girls who prodded them on to a bigger and better season.

It is little wonder that the Class of '67 entered the "big world" of Woodson in bewilderment; however, it did not take long for the freshman cheerleaders to instill a feeling of pride in their school which ultimately led to class unity. With the football season upon them, the girls spent many an hour learning appropriate cheers which would give the team a boost. As the cheerleaders encouraged their teams onward with new cheers in the basketball season, the victories mounted. Finishing the year in high style the freshman teams, as well as the entire student body say, "Thanks for a job well done. Freshman Cheerleaders!"

Cavaliers joined the ranks of District 1-A teams

The 1963 season marked many firsts for the Woodson Cavaliers. It was the first season that the team played in District 1-A Competition, that seniors represented us on the gridiron, and that the team achieved victory over their arch-rivals, the Marshall Statesmen.

Student spirit faced an equally formidable challenge. For the first time, football fans were faced with having to support the Cavaliers through both victory and defeat. Yet, the spirit was always present! From the first shout at the opening pep rally until the final whistle at the McLean game, the fans were always in there—cheering, pleading, and rooting their team onward.

Their cheers were not in vain, for the Cavaliers, trained by Head Coach Chuck Billak and Assistant Dan Lehman, maintained a respectable 5-5 record, having played some of the toughest area teams.

Though only breaking even, the Cavaliers received some consolation in that three of the season's five losses were dealt by the top three league contenders. Likewise, the team members themselves felt that two of their three best-played games were losses to McLean and to G.W., while the third was the victory over Marshall.

At the end of the season, the coaches selected five boys whose achievements and efforts earned for them these awards: Outstanding Offensive Lineman, Rick Munnikhuysen: Outstanding Offensive Back. Gary Maupin: Outstanding Defensive Lineman, Harold Smarr; Outstanding Defensive Back, Ken Pennington; and Sportsmanship, Wally Burke.

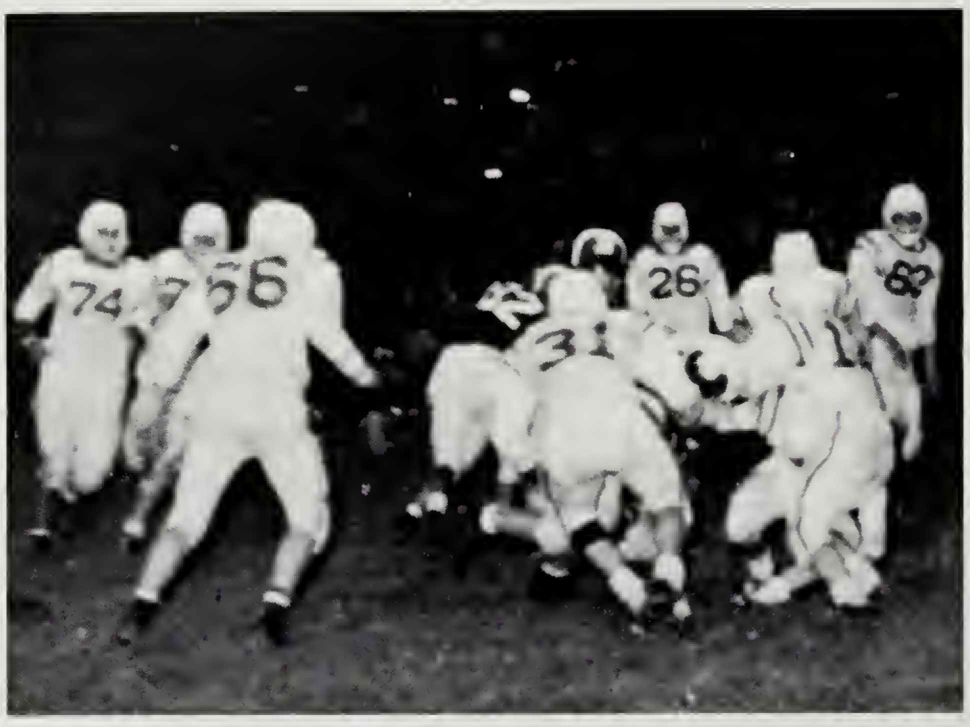
A Madison tackler gets one hand around Dave Strong's ankle to bring him down. Harold Smarr (61) and Harold Schaitberger (22) look on.

Ken Pennington moves in to defend against a Groveton end as the intended receiver gropes wildly for the ball.



A Wakefield back runs into a stone wall as four Woodson tacklers including Wally Burke (31) and Bob Uhler (12) pull him to the ground. Other Cavaliers are Mike Patton (74), Bob Berezoski (70), Don Stout (66), Greg DeHaven (26), and Ronnie Walsh (63).

A touchdown run by Greg Sarley on a recovered fumble, a one yard plunge by Gary Maupin, and pass interceptions by Bob Uhler, Bill Perry, and Greg DeHaven sparked the Woodson Cavaliers to victory in their first District 1-A game by a score of 12-0 over the Groveton Tigers.

For the second game, the Cavalier defense squad was superior, intercepting two passes (one by Ken Pennington and one by Greg DeHaven) and holding Edison scoreless. In offensive play Gary Maupin ran for two touchdowns and Bill Perry caught a touchdown pass in the defeat of Edison, 18-0.

In our 7-2 loss to Wakefield, we met an equally strong defense. Neither offensive squad scored all night. While the Cavaliers were put on the scoreboard by defensive back Ken Pennington's tackle of a Wakefield quarterback in the end zone, the Warrior defense picked up Wakefield's winning points in a second quarter punt return. Gary Maupin scored his fourth touchdown in as many games, Bob Gass recovered a Madison fumble, Wayne Greenberg intercepted a pass, and Greg DeHaven knocked down a fourth quarter punt, but this was not enough to stop the Madison drive. Woodson lost its second straight game, 12-6.

The defense collapsed and the offense experienced a bad case of butterfingers, as Woodson suffered its most humiliating defeat all season, 32-13 to Fairfax. Wayne Greenberg passed to Harold Schaitberger for one touchdown, and ran one over himself to lead a futile, late game rally.

At last! The Woodson Cavaliers soundly trounced their arch-rival, Marshall, 20-7. The defense was back on the beam, and for the first time, the offense was really clicking. Bill Perry ran for one touchdown, Harold Schaitberger for another, and Dave Strong passed as never before for the last.

The Mt. Vernon game, which we won, was nothing like the sweet victory of one week earlier. The defense again played a fine game, with Tom White picking up a Mt. Vernon fumble and carrying it sixty-three yards to set up a one yard plunge by Dave Strong for the lone score.

Although losing, the Cavaliers showed their strength against the G.W. Generals (one of the top ranked teams), in a game much closer than the final score indicated. Wally Burke intercepted a pass in the third quarter and ran fifty yards to the four yard line. But, the offense couldn't score, and G.W. went on to score and win 13-0.

Herndon, confident after having already won their district championship, came up against a superior defense, and let Gary Maupin through two times too many. Maupin broke through for a long gain, and shortly after, scored the touchdown, with Alan Myers kicking the winning extra point.

McLean, favored by twenty-eight points, only won by twelve as the Cavaliers played their best game all year. This was the climax of the season, especially for the seniors who were playing their last high school football game; and they celebrated by holding the Highlanders for three quarters.

The Woodson Junior Varsity football team won only two games, but they learned to play as a team, and gained valuable experience that will help them in the years to come; in this way, they had a successful season.

The beginning of the season was a big disappointment, but the team bounced back, tying Fairfax and beating Mt. Vernon and Herndon in their last five games. This late surge can be credited to a great rise in spirit and attitude, and to a big help from an alert defensive team, especially in the Fairfax and Herndon games.

Leading the team all season were co-captains Chuck Gorder and Bernd Rothenberg, end Dave Marsden with twelve points, most valuable player Dan Schultz, fullback and high scorer Vincent Evans with twenty-three points, and tackle Bernie Bandish. Quarterback Bucky Paine and halfback Hap Hodges each had twelve points, while halfback Lee Jarrell had six. Special credit should also be given to the defensive and offensive lines for their performance throughout the entire season.

Spirit and sportsmanship prevailed to the end

Bucky Paine and Vincent Evans ran for one touchdown apiece, but it just wasn't enough as an erratic Woodson defense gave up much more in a 33-14 loss to Edison.

The team looked better, however, than they did one week later against Wakefield. Vincent Evans ran for Woodson's lone touchdown, but the Cavaliers were swamped in the second half and lost 21-6.

A touchdown by Bucky Paine proved insufficient when the extra point was missed, thus, the fighting Cavaliers lost a heartbreaker to Madison by a point.

Again a missed extra point proved costly, Lee Jarrell scored a touchdown and the defense looked great while settling for a tie with Fairfax, 6-6.

Although routed 25-6 by the herculean Statesmen, the disappointed Cavaliers had one moment of hope when Hap Hodges caught a touchdown pass.

At last the Cavaliers were the victors! The vanquished Majors fell when a touchdown and two points were scored by Vincent Evans and then another by Hap Hodges.

One week later the Cavaliers were pounded by the Generals. Dave Marsden caught a pass for Woodson's score, but the out-sized Cavaliers lost 25-6.

The team was up for the final game, as the scoreboard showed. The combined efforts of Dave Marsden's touchdown and Vincent Evans' PAT shut Herndon out completely.

Emphasis was on learning this year, and the Freshman team accomplished their purpose. The offense averaged nine points a game, picking up in the latter part of the season, while the defense kept up a steady pace all season, giving up no more than an average of six points per game.

Dave Morrow ran for eight yards and a touchdown giving Woodson a six-point victory over the Statesmen; though they came within five yards of a tie. In a game dominated by Woodson, the Cavaliers had two touchdowns called back for unnecessary roughness, and settled for a 0-0 tie with Madison. A penalty also cost them the game with Stuart, who won 7-0. This time it was delay of game at the goal line, and after the penalty they couldn't seem to push across. Jim Metz ran fifty yards off tackle for Woodson's lone score, as Annandale topped the Cavaliers 13-6.

The Cavaliers tore McLean apart in a 27-13 stomp. Touchdown runs by Dorian Fullerton and Don Stoops, a fifty yard pass play to Metz, and a thirty yard pass interception by Mike Foley were the most significant plays. Most Outstanding Freshman Player Richard Corey, solid defensive play, and a touchdown run by John Reidelbach gave the Cavaliers a 14-6 victory over the Jaguars.

by coming out undefeated for the season

Victory and teamwork were the prime achievements of the Varsity and Junior Varsity hockey teams. Each completed the season with an undefeated record in Fairfax County.

Led by co-captains Cindy King and Phyllis Dunn, the Varsity team started off by defeating Edison, 4-3. As the season progressed, so did the unity and talent of the team. Miss Betty Harrelson, the varsity coach, stated that it was the powerful forward line and variety of scoring patterns that led for the team's winning season.

Seldom were the varsity Cavaliers scored against, although their game against Madison proved to be a real test. The game ended with Woodson winning by the narrow margin of 1-0.

Cindy King led the Cavaliers in total scoring, with seven points. Second to her came Stephanie Issitt, Susan Giller, and Susan Russell, contributing five goals apiece.

This win gave the girls just enough of that precious asset, self-confidence, to wind up their season with a 6-0 victory over Mt. Vernon.

At the close of the season, the varsity squad elected the girl they felt most deserving of the sportsmanship award. This resulted in Cindy King's being the Most Outstanding Player and Gail Livington's receiving the Sportsmanship Award. Following suit, the junior varsity elected the one individual whom they felt most worthy of the sportsmanship award. Dianne Waters was presented with this award.

The majority of the varsity players were seniors, whose outstanding season will certainly leave them with some vivid memories. They need not be fearful about the future, for the junior varsity team proved themselves equally talented for their class. During their season they had only one point scored against them, but their misfortune lay in two scoreless games, one against Lee and the other against Fairfax. This didn't seem to discourage our J.V. Cavaliers, for they completed their season with the outstanding record of four wins, two ties. As one can see, the varsity hockey team of next year certainly has the qualifications for another winning season.

Not only did they complete the season with a fine record of wins, but they created a picture of truly laudable play and sportsmanship. Our heartiest congratulations go to each member of both the varsity and junior varsity teams.

The Varsity Cavaliers

The Woodson Varsity Basketball team had a frustrating year. They ended the season with an overall 7-11 record and a league record of 6-9. However, many of the games were much closer than the final record indicates: the Edison game went two overtimes before the Eagles could finally score enough to register a victory, the Annandale game was a tie until the last five seconds, the Marshall game was still up for grabs with one second to go, and the Cavaliers lost another game to Edison and one to W-L by five points or less. In the end, it was quite an exciting year with many victories by close scores.

One very good note was a transfer from Morgantown, West Virginia, by the name of Gabe Oliverio. At one point of the season (January. 26) he led the State Group 1-A scholastic basketball scoring race with a 24.3 scoring average per game, and he finished with a 23.9 average.

The loss of Bob Fagan around the middle of the season brought disappointment. With the loss of Fagan, the team lost ten points and fifteen rebounds per game. Another loss resulted from the injury of Greg DeHaven at the end of football season; with this injury, the basketball team lost his services for the first of the season.

Emphasis was on giving the Juniors experience for next year; in the Groveton game alone, there were no Seniors placed in the game until midway through the second quarter. And this is the way it was throughout the year, a preparation for next year: Oliverio, Dave Strong, John Martin, Don Celec, Dan Mastic, Denny Carr, Clint Hubbard, and Jeff Willison were the underclassmen on the team compared to Seniors Bill Over, John Cabot, Randy Galbraith, Bob Fagan, and Greg DeHaven.

The team started off by winning four of their first six games, losing only in double overtime to Edison, and by the exasperating two points to Annandale when Andy Marusak ended a scoring duel with Gabe Oliverio by sinking an outside shot with only five seconds left in the game.

Then came the eight game streak when the only victory was a ten point margin over Mt. Vernon on the superiority of the Cavaliers' foul shots. However, in this streak, many of the games were close.

Gabe Oliverio (22) tries to block a Wakefield pass and John Martin and Bill Perry (24) come on to assist.

The final four games were an even draw with the Cavaliers winning two and losing two. The first victory (over Madison) was a thrilling seesaw battle that was won in the final minute of play. The other win was by seven points over Hammond in a game in which the lead was gained in the fourth quarter. The two losses in these last four games were two exactly opposite games: the first was an overwhelming, seventeen point loss to Wakefield, while the other (to Marshall) was a last-minute thriller.

The Cavalyearlings

The Junior Varsity Basketball team, led by high rebounder Bob Lueke, and most valulable player, high scorer and the leader in assists, Dave Oliverio, achieved a highly successful season with ten wins and six losses. Four of these losses were by a total of only eleven points and could have been won with a few breaks.

The success of the team is attributed to the hollering, hustle, and spirit of both the starting team and the bench. This attitude led Coach Bob Smith to say that this team had the "best winning spirit of any group of boys I've worked with." Coach Smith also pointed out that throughout the season all accomplishments were achieved through a team effort.

The squad began the year by winning four of the first five games, with the lone loss going to Fairfax by a mere three points. Three-point losses to Edison, and Wakefield, and a two-point loss to Groveton, were the only scores chalked up in the loss column during one eight-game streak in the middle of the season. Team spirit reached a peak and was, perhaps, the deciding factor in the team's victories over Stuart and W-L.

The Freshman Basketball team, starting out almost entirely inexperienced, improved as the season progressed, and finally won five out of their last six games.

Their successful 6-4 season was the result of desire and hustle; the fact that everyone wanted to contribute in the team effort and, therefore, gave his "all" in every minute of every game turned out to be the deciding factor in more than one game.

Terry Corcoran, the floor leader for the team, provided able leadership throughout the year. Hap Hodges was the leading scorer with a 9.9 point average per game. Corcoran was second and Jerry Moore was third in this important facet of the season. Hodges, Moore, and Steve Rust were the team leaders in rebounds. As can be seen by these figures, the fine record was not achieved by any individual efforts, but by a definite team coordination.

The team opened the season with a 45-30 victory over the Annandale Atoms, in a game which proved to be the only win for almost the first half of the season. This shows the great improvement made as the season progressed.

After the victory over Annandale, a long, dry spell ensued. Losses to Hammond, Groveton, and George Washington came in quick succession; but valuable experience was gained in these games.

A final streak of victories over Ft. Hunt, Falls Church, Edison, Herndon, and Marshall was interrupted by a long loss to the Fairfax Rebels. This last victory skein came as a result of the vast improvement.

The girls of Woodson High School continued to excel in interscholastic athletics during basketball season. The varsity Cavalettes posted a six and six season while the Junior Varsity contributed an outstanding nine and three record. Added to the championships on the hockey field, these marks gave the Cavalettes a highly successful fall and winter in their second year of existence.

The Junior Varsity team was led offensively by high scorers Nancy Boice and Cindy Corso. Mary Mastropaolo and Carol Giller led a defensive team that held their opponents to an average of twelve points per game and, in one particular three game stretch, the team gave up only twenty-one points. As the season progressed, notable improvement came in the areas of passing and rebounding.

After a dismal first year, the Varsity bounced back to a highly successful season this year. Heads-up play proved to be the difference between the two years. The offense, led by Stephanie Issitt, outscored all opponents with field goals, but in the important art of foul shooting, which was the deciding factor in many games, the team lagged until a little too late in the season, though marked improvement did come.

Coach Dennis Houlihan, starting with eight returning lettermen, molded a highly successful Varsity Wrestling team. A combination of past experience and tremendous drive enabled this squad to achieve an 8-3 record.

One disappointment during the year was the number of injuries that plagued three of the starting wrestlers. Jim Hayes at the 165 pound class was out the first part of the season, while Kerry Pope at 120 and John Loving at 180 were both injured at one time or another.

The beginning of the season provided a deceptive start, as the Cavaliers lost to Wakefield and W-L in the first three matches of an otherwise successful campaign. The squad then gained the necessary winning spirit and reeled off six straight victories before losing a squeeker to Stuart. They ended the season with a respectable seven-point win over Edison.

The squad began the season with a 39-6 lopsided victory over Lee before going into the swoon of two straight losses already mentioned. Then a close two-point victory over Falls Church started their six match winning streak that included one-sided wins over Marshall, O'Connell, Madison, and Osbourn; also included in the streak was a narrow victory over Fairfax.

Intramural wrestling from the beginning of October until November served as training for the veterans as well as for new prospects. At the beginning of November, training, learning, and re-learning started in earnest. From that time until the end of February, fundamentals, exercises, and the principles of weight control were drilled into the heads of every wrestler until the basic as well as fancy moves became reflex action.

Cenard Girard and Lou Henderson won berths in the Northern Virginia Tournaments held here at Woodson. Girard at the 145 pound class placed second in the tournaments after a close match for first in which he almost escaped a number of times. Girard then went on to tie for fourth in the State Tournaments. Lou Henderson at 103 placed fourth here at Woodson and also went on to tie for fourth in the State tournament.

In addition to the terrific 9-1 record of Girard, and the highly successful season of Henderson, many of the other varsity wrestlers had very successful seasons and improved a great deal with the added experience.

Mike Young, Bill Selecman, Wally Burke, Elston Perry, Cenard Girard, and Wicky Grunwell talk about a coming match.

The J.V. wrestling team ended its very successful 6-2 season with a 44-4 victory over Edison. This one-sided victory exemplified the jayvee's strength, which was evident throughout the campaign. The hard work and time of both the wrestlers and Coach Thompson were rewarded by many pleasant surprises and hard-fought victories.

The J.V. team worked out with the Varsity during the season; thus, many of the moves and countermoves employed by the varsity were also used by the J.V.

The most outstanding wrestler on the squad, Pete Haselton (138), won every county match by a pin. Tom Smith and Randy Johnson, both of whom will be leaving for Jefferson High next year, represented the 95 weight class. At 103 pounds, Jeff Young is described as the most "up and coming" wrestler at Woodson. Steve Rhoades wrestled at 112 and is one of the strongest matmen at Woodson. At 120, Paul Smutko was called "the foot man" by virtue of a move he invented and used with great success; Scott Knopke shared the 120 spot although he broke his nose early in the year. Bill Elliot, Chris Murphy, and Dave Tuttle shared the 127 category, maintaining a respectable record, while Bernd Rothenberg at 133 was second only to Haselton as the best wrestler on the squad. Pete McDonald (145) was one of the better wrestlers on the squad and Pat Julian (154) overcame torn ligaments to have a good season. Co-captain Dana Shreve at 165 provided leadership as well as fine wrestling. Duncan Adams, although weighing only 165, wrestled in the 180 weight class and in the last five seconds of the Fairfax match scored the winning points on a pin. John Haynie and Bill Flynt both wrestled in the unlimited weight class at various times in the year.

The varsity baseball team, coached by Dan Lehman, began the season with the benefit of eight returning lettermen and seven members of last year's junior varsity squad. This experience, added to the hard work put out during try-outs and practices, assured a team that worked well together throughout the season.

Although there was already quite a bit of experience present on the team, stress seemed to be put on developing even more for future years. On the squad of eighteen players, there was a total of twelve juniors and one sophomore; the experience gained by the thirteen this year will be put to good use next year when they return to the diamond with one more year of actual participation on the field.

In the beginning, since the members of the team were presumed to know the basic fundamentals of the game, more stress was put on the perfection of basic skills than on the learning of them. Much time was spent on the regular old hitting, pitching, and fielding practice; in time, such team drills as double plays and pick-offs were worked on.

In their first year, they had to roam all over Northern Virginia looking for a field, but this year, this time could be better spent in practice now that they had access to the Woodson athletic fields.

TRACK

Coaches Volrath and Spangler molded a very respectable track team during the end of winter and beginning of spring. The track team consisted of the usual track and field events: sprints, distance running, high jumping, broad jumping, pole vaulting, various and sundry relay teams, high and low hurdles, shot put, and discus.

As in all of the sports at Woodson this year, there were many veterans from the year before. There were also many juniors and sophomores on the squad promising an even brighter future.

The Junior Varsity team was a group of boys who also ran in meets but gave the varsity quite a bit of competition. They had the right to dislodge any varsity member any time they could beat them; this challenge kept both the Varsity and J.V. on their toes.
